reality that transcends this life and a Love that transcends this world.

death. Jesus shows us this by way of his death and resurrection.

The manger of baby Jesus is connected to the cross of suffering and crucified Jesus. He came not to live but to die, so that we might have life in Him. This life is more than mere biological life. Jesus wants to share divine life with us. He wants us to have eternal life in and through Him.

So, even when it might seem like all hell is breaking loose in this world, we still rejoice because Christ has overcome the world.

Maranatha Monday

Please consider joining us December 16 at 7 PM at our St. Symphorosa worship site for Maranatha Monday.

This will be an Advent evening of reflection in the presence of the Blessed Sacrament.

The evening will consist of adoration, scripture, reflections, and Advent hymns. The evening should last about one hour; maybe just over an hour. Maranatha Monday is a great way to step out of the hustle and bustle of the secular holiday stress and into the presence of the One whose coming we celebrate at Christmas.

You don't need to bring anything except a receptive and prayerful heart. Peace!

Quote -- "Trust God that you are exactly where you are meant to be." -- St. Teresa of Avila

The Third Sunday of Advent is also known as Gaudete Sunday.

Gaudete is Latin for "Rejoice!" On this day, we light the rose candle of our Advent wreath as we anticipate the joy of our Christmas celebration.

During the season of Advent, we are mindful of the "three comings" of Christ. His first coming 2,000 years ago in human flesh, His coming to us today in and through His Church, and His Second Coming in power and glory at the end of time.

The spiritual danger for us is when we only look back in time and forget that the Lord is present to us today, especially in the seven sacraments of the Church; most intimately in the gift of the Eucharist, which is the Body and Blood of Jesus.

We also look forward during Advent to the promise of the Christ coming again in glory. This spiritual truth wakes us up and keeps us alert, lest we slip into spiritual forgetfulness. It's easy, at times, to live only for today or only for this world. As followers of Christ, however, we believe in a

We use these weeks of Advent to ponder a great mystery; the mystery of God, the mystery of the Incarnation, the mystery of love.

In our second reading this Sunday, St. Paul writes, "The Lord is near. Have no anxiety at all."

So much of the anxiety we sense in our culture today comes from lack of trust in God's promise. The late Trappist monk Thomas Merton wrote, "Anxiety is a mark of spiritual insecurity."

Far too many folks don't know what to believe is true today. There is much confusion, and a lot of angst because plenty of folks simply do not believe the story of salvation to be true. People lose hope. We risk succumbing to despair.

Advent is a time to wake up; to wake up to the truth of God's love for us, and to live each day mindful of God. There should be no days off from loving God and loving neighbor. We live with joy-filled hearts even during tough times and sorrowful times because Love is stronger than believes in him might not perish, but might have eternal life.”

This word, “only-begotten”, was carefully selected by both John the Evangelist and the council fathers. It comes from the Greek term monogenes and implies that there is a total giving over on behalf of the one who begets. It is not the same as birthing or creating, though there is some relation to those terms.

Begetting implies that both the begetter and the begotten are of the same type and substance. One cannot beget something that is a different species.

In this sense, a human father begets a human son, but wouldn't beget a baby shark or a viral song. The former is impossible; the latter is, while good and catchy, a creation and thus lesser than the creator.

It may still sound like there was a time that the Son didn't exist when we use this language of begetting. After all, begetting can happen in time. It's important to note here who is doing the begetting – the Father, who is eternal because he is God. This eternal person begets a person who is the same substance but is distinct in existence. So, the Son is also eternal because he is divine. The begetting of the Son, then, is not a moment in history, nor a physical birth, but a process out of which the second person of the Trinity emanates from the Father.

An example the Church Fathers gave drew on the philosophy of the “Logos”, which for the Greeks meant word, logic, and order of existence. They recognized that a word exists as a thought in the mind before it is given form. The thought is generated and exists prior to it being expressed by words using the mouth. The words remain the thought of the thinker, but they have taken a different form when they are spoken. While no analogy is perfect, we can see how the Father can beget the Son without saying there was a time in which the Son did not exist.

If this seems confusing, you are not alone. When speaking of the relationship of the Father and Son, we are delving into the heart of the Trinity, which is the central mystery of our faith. No theologian, philosopher, or believer has ever been able to fully comprehend the nature of our Triune God. Rather, we seek to explain what we can and show that it is reasonable to believe in this revealed truth about God.

When it comes to the Father and the Son, one is not subordinate to the other. It's not a temporal, causal sequence, but rather a source and a sharing. The Son fully receives the divinity of the Father and possesses it as the gift it is. This allows him to share a part of that sonship with us as God's creatures.

The first aspect we claim about the one Lord Jesus Christ is that he is the only-begotten Son of God. The fathers of the Nicene Creed, as we've heard, were primarily concerned with clarifying the relationship of the Father and the Son in order to refute the heretical claims of Arius. Remember that it was Arius who believed that the Son was less than the Father, created by the Father as his most powerful creature, but still not divine. Arius also stated that since God is one, he cannot be divided and thus could not share divinity with the Son. Jesus, then, was the adopted Son of the Father.

We know this to be false, considering all the instances that “the Son” is referenced in the Gospels. At the baptism of the Lord and again at the Transfiguration, God calls Jesus “My beloved Son”. This of course doesn't mean that those who are adopted aren't sons or aren't beloved. So how was Jesus different?

The key scriptures here are in the Gospel of John. We read in John 1: “The Word became flesh and dwelt among us, full of grace and truth; we have beheld his glory, glory as of the only-begotten of the Father.” Then, in John 3, we see, “For God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten son, so that everyone who
